TENANT FOCUS JULY—SEPTEMBER 2007

COMMUNITY FUND RAISING ARDEN VILLA

What can we do to raise money? You think; the wheels of your mind turn; the idea hits you. You envision dollar after dollar marching into your treasury. You have started on your yard sale journey.

Notices requesting donations were posted. We agreed to institute a 50/50 policy. Donators would receive half the money on their sold items, the treasury the other half. Most donators were willing to give 100% to the treasury.

Be careful about what you ask for; you might get it. Donations rolled in. They came from residents, family, friends, and caretakers. Our work was cut out for us.

Everything was inspected. Clothing which had tears or stains was discarded. Non-clothing items which needed cleaning were cleaned; things were tested to be sure they worked. Batteries were installed. Yes! We sewed torn seams and did eight loads of laundry to freshen the clothing. Every 50/50 item had to be listed so we could keep track.

We sized, priced and boxed and those boxes accumulated rapidly. Since Arden Villa has no large, secure storage area, my apartment became one. By June half the floor space in both my dining area and living room was consumed. I was living in a warehouse.

We did sell some things before the actual yard sale and had $120 in the treasury to pay for expenses incurred.

Acquiring donations is just one aspect of a yard sale. How do you display them? St. Ignatius Church kindly lent us 15 long tables. Since it would be a hot day we decided to sell soda and water. Then, up to the bank to get dollar bills and change.

D-day was dawning! We drove around posting yard sale signs in what we hoped were conspicuous places. We cordoned off the guest parking lot where the sale was to be held. We placed larger signs with balloons at the community entrance. Tomorrow is THE DAY!

7:30 am. We begin setting up tables. A big problem

TENANT FOCUS

here - too much stuff. About half of it had to be left in boxes. Its 10 o'clock and the customers start arriving. Sales weren't brisk, but we did sell. We closed at 5:00 with many items left. We groaned at the thought of repacking and reversing the process the next morning. Two Good Samaritans came to our rescue and acted as security guards.

Day two of the yard sale wasn't exciting, but we did sell. 3:00 o'clock has come - time to put it all away, go home and collapse. But there was so much left! Back to my apartment it came and I was once again living in a warehouse.

Now that we're seasoned veterans we decide to have another yard sale two weeks later.

Seasoned veterans or gluttons for punishment? We didn't do too well on this one; nevertheless, the treasury is $400 richer after expenses and cost-sharing. Leftover items were donated to a charity.

What we learned the hard way:

1. Hold your yard sale in a place which is accessible to the general public.

2. Advertise anywhere you can: web sites, Craig's List, word of mouth. The Bee and Pennysaver will charge you $20 per ad.

3. Be sure you have enough manpower, especially for heavy tasks.

A 50/50 situation is not good. Keeping track of sales for later accounting is far too complicated.

GOOD LUCK!

Hold your yard sale in a place which is accessible to the general public.
